

Rhizophagy Cycle

The rhizophagy cycle is a process where plants obtain nutrients from soil microbes by internalizing them into root cells, extracting nutrients, and then releasing them back into the soil.

